In fact, we have heard of only one reported case involving the debtor, James Dugan. In Dugan, the court held that a $15,000.00 personal injury claim, which was property of the estate, could not be exempted by the debtor under § 522(d)(11)(D). The court allowed the debtor to exempt $15,000.00 of "pain and suffering" under § 522(d)(11)(D) but held that the debtor could not exempt the remaining $15,000.00 under the catchall "wild card" exemption. Dugan, supra. It is uncertain whether the Dugan court considered the $15,000.00 personal injury claim to be the same as the plaintiff's medical malpractice claim in the case at bar, as in Dugan, $12,000.00 was applied against medical expenses. Nonetheless, Dugan supports this court's conclusions that the debtor's medical malpractice claim is not property of the estate and that the debtor's medical malpractice claim is a "pain and suffering" right, for personal injury or wrongful death, *1120 which is exemptable under the plain meaning of § 522(d)(11)(D). As a final note of significance, we point out that the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, in affirming the validity of § 522(d)(11)(D), emphasized that such an exemption was not a derogation from applicable state law. In re George, 752 F.2d at 839. While this may appear to be a procedural deficiency, we view it as a strong indication that a debtor's medical malpractice
